

Transgender Day of Remembrance

November 20, 2021

Transgender people in Boulder are valued and important members of our community.

Transgender people are more likely to be discriminated against in the areas of housing, employment and healthcare.

The City of Boulder will continue to educate and advocate about transgender issues and provide funding for services and programs for the transgender community.

November 20th of each year we honor transgender people who have been murdered because of their transgender identity and we acknowledge the level of extreme violence and fear faced by transgender people nationally and internationally.

The City of Boulder values continuing support for transgender people by directly advocating for transgender cultural competency training, expanding programs for transgender people, and providing access for equal representation of transgender people in the decision making processes of city government.

We, the City Council of the City of Boulder, Colorado declare November 20 as

Transgender Day of Remembrance

Sam Weaver, Mayor
